COUNTERFEITER CONFESSES; HIS PLATES FOUND

Marcus Crahan, Arrested at Delmar
Track, at Last Tells Chief Wilkie of His Successful Operations With Bogus Money.

USED SEVERAL PLANS TO ESCAPE DETECTION

His Kit of Plates are Recovered at Union Station—Inspection of "Found Ad" Was the Clew That Led to His Arrest in St. Louis.

The confession of Marcus Crahan, the counterfeiter arrested at the Delmar race-track, places him at the head of the clever counterfeiting with whom the secret service department has had to deal in many years, according to the statement of Chief John E. Wilkie, to whom Crahan made the confession. With the skill of a secret service man, Crahan covered all his tracks, he thought, that it would be impossible to arrest him, but he reckoned not with the men with whom he had to deal.

By Crahan's confession, Chief Wilkie learned that he was entirely alone in the making and passing of the notes. This is unusual, as it is seldom a man is found passing the counterfeit money which he has made. Crahan had no previous criminal history.

Crahan was taken before Judge Adams in the United States District Court Friday morning, and announced his willingness to plead guilty. He stated, however, that he would not do so until he had consulted his attorney. The court gave him until Saturday to make his plea.

Thursday Chief Wilkie explained to Crahan the evidence which the secret service investigations had developed. He explained that the government had in its possession the links used by him, had located the room where he worked, at the same time giving him an explanation of his every movement, so that Crahan could not help but be certain that the government knew nearly the entire history of the manufacture and passing of the notes.

Confronted with the evidence and asked whether or not he wished to continue to "buck" the government or did he wish to make a full confession and take advantage of the good will of the men who would prosecute him, Crahan finally broke down and said he would tell all. The confession, which was later stated orally by Chief Wilkie, shows:

Crahan was a photo-engraver in Providence, R. I., in April, 1903, he began experimenting with making a $10 note. After much labor he perfected the set of plates and printed seventy or eighty of the notes. Of this number about sixteen were counterfeit. Of these he passed in the New England states. He was successful that he started to try his hand at $100 notes, realizing in the race-track that he could get a good price for large denominations. It was in November, 1903, that he started making the $100 notes and found that an extremely difficult experiment for the reason that it was necessary to make five plates. Each note had to be run through the press five times. By the end of April, 1904, however, he had finished 200 notes. He then cleaned up his plant and packed it in a large box and sent it to a warehouse in Providence under the name of "Oleander Cartwright." Instead of the lines of his plates being raised he cut them into the copper. He used what is known as a Kelton "D" press. A tremendous force is exerted by this press on the paper, forcing it through the plates. First the entire surface is inked, but it is then rubbed clean, leaving only the raised cuts.

May 26 he passed 20 of the notes at the Delmar track at New York. He met a man in the New York paper a lost some money in bills. This was for the purpose of enabling him to make this claim against the paper.

Coming to St. Louis he repeated this plan. He then took a value containing the notes and the blue ink, with which he made the imitation fine lines, and other colored inks, brushes and pens at Union Station, where he checked it. He then addressed it to "Leander Cartwright," at general delivery, St. Louis. There he allowed it to remain, while secret service men have been searching for it. Mr. and St. Louis, in an effort to locate the notes, which they knew he must have, but he could not be found.

All that time within the very building in which the plans of the work on the Crahan case were being made, the same day, lay the evidence for which they were to use to overthrow the great qualities of President Roosevelt. If anything, he rather undervalued the services rendered by the Roosevelt administration. When, at the instance of President Roosevelt, he made his confession, he found that he had misrepresented the case, he told what he really knew.

After making the confession, Crahan did not seem to be greatly worried about the predicament in which he was placed. As he came from the station, he was met by two secret service men and his friend, C. E. Dart of Providence. R. E. Dart had smacked his face and Dart, believing Crahan was innocent, came to Louis Crahan's room to assist him. After the confession he looked 10 years older, but he had his hair cut. When he was told that Crahan had confessed, and when Crahan had confirmed the statement, Dart was compelled to make a new dash for support. He came home fainting. He said later that he would remain Crahan's friend as long as they had each other for many years to come, that he would stay in St. Louis for a time and do what he could for Crahan. Crahan, however, was not to be found. The note, which was now only one counterfeited note outstanding of which the government was in possession, where and when it was made. The one note is a $100 buffalo counterfeit, which only came to the secret service. Thursday

BUSINESS MEN ON THE TICKET AND PLATFORM

Many Republicans, Especially Among New York Bankers, Brokers and Insurance Men,
Refuse to Discuss Them—Others Think Country Safe With Roosevelt.

HOW NOMINEE IS REGARDED IN THE PIVOTAL STATES

Manufacturers and Merchants, on the Whole,
Approve Him, but Some Have Grievances —Result of St. Louis Convention May Influence Many.

The New York World and Post-Di-patch, in endeavoring to ascertain the sentiment of the business community throughout the country, have obtained from prominent business men expressions of their views on President Roosevelt and his policies. Men representing big business states in what may be the pivotal election were asked for their opinions. Their statements follow:

NO OPINION AT MORGANS.
NEW YORK, June 24.—J. P. Morgan is not in town. In his stead, George Perkins does the talking for J. P. Morgan & Co. A Post-Dispatch representative, instructed to obtain interviews with every possible member of the firm, endeavored to reach
George C. Thomas, Edward T. Stotesbury,
Charles Steele, George W. Perkins, Edward
F. Whitney, James W. Paul, Jr., J. P.
Morgan, Jr.; Temple Bowden, Edward M.
Robinson and William Pieron Hamilton, but the man who attends to such things in the office of the banking house said that he would take no message to Mr. Perkins and to no other of the firm, those being his instructions. A note to Mr. Perkins elicited this reply through the man:

"Mr. Perkins is sorry, but he is very busy and has nothing to say about the ticket or the platform."

NEW YORK BANKERS.

Charles A. Vanderlip, vice-president of the National City Bank, I believe the Republican party, has not pronounced a better ticket and that it will receive full support that a Republican ticket could expect from all commercial interests. Honest, vigor and high motives are about as sound elements as possible of which to make a ticket, and this ticket contains those elements. In a most noteworthy degree, I believe the commercial interests are well satisfied with the platform.

NEW YORK MARITIME EX-CHANGE.
E. L. Oppenheim, Roosevelt and Fairbanks' are safe, conservative men and make an exceptionally strong ticket.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.
Gustav H. Schwab: I don't want to comment on the ticket at this time.

E. C. Van Der Lip: It's a very good ticket and ought to win. I don't think it can be improved upon.

NEW YORK PRODUCE EX-
CHANGE.
Max Well of Schwarzerl & Sonberg:
Roosevelt has the confidence of the people. It's a good ticket and looks like a winner. I haven't read the tariff bill and am not in a position to discuss
it.

NEW YORK NATIONAL BANK.
James B. Mabon: Roosevelt and Fairbanks' are safe, conservative men and make a good ticket.

NEW YORK MARITIME EX-
CHANGE.
E. S. Marston, president of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Co.: I do not care to express an opinion on either the ticket or the platform. It would only make trouble. Some of our directors are Democrats and some are Republicans. I admit that bankers generally were very ready to command the Republican ticket in 1896 and again in 1900, but then the course of events has changed.

NEW YORK STOCK EX-
CHANGE.
James T. Woodward, president Hanover
National Bank (through his secretary):
Mr. Woodward has the confidence of the people. It's a good ticket and looks like a winner. I haven't read the tariff bill and am not in a position to discuss
it.

NEW YORK PRODUCE EX-CHANGE.
James T. Woodward, president Hanover
National Bank (through his secretary):
Mr. Woodward is a Democrat and does not want to comment on the ticket.

NEW YORK NATIONAL BANK.
Jacob H. Schiff, banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.: Ex-Secretary Root, in his address to the stockholders, did not show the secret service men that Crahan had been arrested. In the paper at the time of his arrest, he said, "I have nothing to do with it." He addressed it to
"Leander Cartwright," at general delivery,
St. Louis. There he allowed it to remain,
while secret service men have been searching for it. The paper, however, had no knowledge of the secret service
men's search for it.

NEW YORK STOCK EX-
CHANGE.
William Rockefeller: A man in his office, the Standard Oil, took in the notes, which he had received from the secret service men. He said, "I have nothing to do with it." He addressed it to
"Leander Cartwright," at general delivery,
St. Louis. There he allowed it to remain,
while secret service men have been searching for it.

NEW YORK NATIONAL BANK.
John S. Phillips, officer of the Standard Oil Co.: I don't know anything about either the ticket or the platform. I'm hurry to catch a train, anyway.

NEW YORK STOCK EX-
CHANGE.
Henry Clews, banker: I can endorse the Republican ticket because I believe the election of its nominee will be for the best interests of the country. President Roosevelt has been elected, and his administration has been acceptable in every way. If he is elected as I am confident he will be, he will have had the benefit of his past experience.

NEW YORK STOCK EX-
CHANGE.
William Rockefeller: A man in his office, the Standard Oil, took in the notes, which he had received from the secret service men. He said, "I have nothing to do with it." He addressed it to
"Leander Cartwright," at general delivery,
St. Louis. There he allowed it to remain,
while secret service men have been

NEW YORK STOCK EX-
CHANGE.
G. W. Ballou—Politics does not interest me at any appreciable extent. But so far as the Republican nominations are concerned, they seem to be good enough. I have little time to study candidates or politics.

NEW YORK STOCK EX-

Philip Lehman: It's a good ticket for the Republicans no doubt, though it is not a sure thing by any means.

SHOT WOMAN, THEN JUMPED TO DEATH

Former Detroit Official Plunged From Eleventh Story of Building After Wounding Sweetheart.

HIS LOVE HAD COST HIS JOB

Infuriated, He Attempted Vainly to Hurl Her Through Window to the Awful Death He Met Later.

DETROIT, Mich., June 23.—Charles A. Swayze, employed by a life insurance company and former assistant superintendent of the Detroit House of Correction, today shot Miss Effie Alvord twice while the couple were in a private office in the company's suite on the eleventh floor of the Chamber of Commerce building, and then jumped from the window himself.

He was plied with drink as he was carried into the lobby of the building. Miss Alvord was shot in the neck and wrist, but not fatally hurt. It is reported, at Harper Hospital.

Before he fired the shots, Swayze tried to hurl the woman through the window, but she averted this by a desperate struggle.

Miss Alvord drove up to the Chamber of Commerce building in an automobile about 11 o'clock, accompanied by a man. She went to the eleventh floor, and, entering the office of the life insurance company, asked to have a private interview with Mr. Swayze.

She was shown into a small private office fronting on the State street side of the building, where Swayze joined her, shutting and locking the door.

In a few moments the other persons in the office heard a struggle, then screams which were followed in quick succession by several pistol shots. Manager McCall of the agency rushed against the door of the private room and broke it open.

Miss Alvord was prostrate on the floor, her hair disheveled and her waist torn. There were wounds in her neck and wrist.

Through the open window Mr. McCall could see Swayze's hands clutching the window ledge. They were in view for only moment. Then Swayze let go and his body went whirling down through the air. It hit several wires and turned over twice, but it never hit the ground.

A bullet wound in his nose showed that he had also shot himself before taking the plunge.

It was just a breath in the body when it was picked up and that flickered before he had been carried into the Chamber of Commerce.

Meanwhile physicians in the building had been summoned to the insurance office to attend Miss Alvord. They found her pulse weak, but not fatal.

Miss Alvord is an employee of a sewing machine company, but worked before that for a dress manufacturer. She was assistant superintendent there. Her home is said to be at Saginaw, Mich.

HELD THE FORT, DEFIED POLICE, THEN GAVE UP

North St. Louis Man Drove Family and Boarders Out of House and Barricaded Himself Inside It for Several Hours.

After driving his family and 15 boarders from the house with a gun, and resisting a detail of three police sergeants and five patrolmen all night at his saloon and rooming house, 2137 North Broadway, Charles C. Wild quietly surrendered at 6:30 o'clock Friday morning and was placed under arrest.

Wild took his family, boarders and neighbors by surprise, and they are yet wondering as to the reason for his sudden attack upon them. The only explanation is that recent troubles temporarily affected his mind.

Wild's attack was made with a shotgun, and after he had cleared the house of all its dwellers he barricaded a position on the second floor, at the head of the stairway, and awaited attack.

Before entering the house he is said to have threatened E. Kuebler of 804 Dock street with a gun.

Miss Kuebler was with her husband at the time, and is said to have tried to jerk the weapon from Wild's hands.

She failed, but Wild turned and ran into his house.

Running through the saloon into the small kitchen, which adjoins the dining room, Wild fired one shot, tearing a hole in the ceiling.

The shot did not penetrate the floor above, but the noise惊醒了 the boarders upstairs so that they ran from their rooms down stairs, fire escaped and even descended from the windows by means of rope ladders.

Wild made a further demonstration, but remained upstairs when he heard the police come, got behind it and held off the police with his weapon until Friday morning.

Toward morning he barricaded some of the boarders to return to the house and they spent the remainder of the night in their rooms.

ALL THAT REMAINS OF THE HOUSE OF HOO-HOO AT THE FAIR.

BLACK CATS DIE, MEN ESCAPE IN HOO HOO FIRE

Texas is within 35 feet of the House of Hoo Hoo, and in the large first-floor room of this point the relics have been on exhibit. They include pictures, books, papers and various articles identified with the early history of the state, and they are priceless.

The room is in charge of Miss Irene of Cuero, and Miss Hall of San Antonio. They were sleeping in the building, as was Mrs. Emerson, the hostess, and six persons who are her guests, including Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scott.

Work was being done clearing away the site before noon.

N. W. McLeod, president of the local chapter of Hoo Hoo, states that a new, though more elaborate, building will probably be erected.

BUILDING COST $30,000;

May Not Be Rebuilt

Nelson W. McLeod, president of the House of Hoo Hoo, did not know of the fire until informed by the Post-Dispatch.

Asked whether the board of managers will decide to rebuild, said Mr. McLeod.

"This building was the first of the kind ever erected at an Exposition. The total cost was about $30,000. It was intended for use as a lumbermen's club, and, although it was not a success, it was a success with the national order of the same name."

"It was built by an incorporated company, and it has been a success in the United States, including many members of the order of Hoo Hoo. The total membership of the House of Hoo Hoo was about 600. The members are from every section of the country."

"There were no records or articles of history in the building, but it was equipped solely for club purposes.

The most valuable contents were the hardware and fixtures of the various costly woods.

"The building was fitted up with cypress, redwood, white pine, yellow pine and other woods, which were cut and planed by the Fair by firms dealing in them. California firms entered the redwood exhibit, and the men the cypress, and lumbermen from other sections of the country the remainder."

The building was insured for about $25,000.

In addition to Mr. McLeod the members of the board of managers of the House of Hoo Hoo are Mr. Jennings, W. E. Burrows, James E. Lang and W. A. Bonner, all of St. Louis. George E. Watson was day editor of the building.

"RADIUM DANCE" MAKES A HIT.

Kiralfy's Spectacle at Odeon Adds a Crowning Feature.

Nothing has ever been seen on any stage more ingenious, delightful and clever than the "radium dance" introduced last night in Kiralfy's, 1210 Louisiana Purchase Spectacle at the Odeon.

The dance is truly named. The rapidity with which it comes and goes baffles the eye and leaves one wondering if it is a real dance or merely a hit.

It is a big one, and must be one of the crowning features of the spectacle during the run.

Mrs. Bush recognized the man who took off his coat and hat, and danced with him, and was unable to give his name or to where he lived or works.

The "radium dance" occurs in the third act, when electrical effects are introduced, and is danced by 12 young women dressed in white, who are attached to a solid black background, and no sound is heard save the orchestra. It is a real "faster-dance" and reflects great credit upon the persons who conceived it. Considerable special apparatus is required to produce it.

The building was insured for about $25,000.

Nothing has ever been seen on any stage more ingenious, delightful and clever than the "radium dance" introduced last night in Kiralfy's, 1210 Louisiana Purchase Spectacle at the Odeon.

The dance is truly named. The rapidity with which it comes and goes baffles the eye and leaves one wondering if it is a real dance or merely a hit.

It is a big one, and must be one of the crowning features of the spectacle during the run.

Mrs. Bush recognized the man who took off his coat and hat, and danced with him, and was unable to give his name or to where he lived or works.

The "radium dance" occurs in the third act, when electrical effects are introduced, and is danced by 12 young women dressed in white, who are attached to a solid black background, and no sound is heard save the orchestra. It is a real "faster-dance" and reflects great credit upon the persons who conceived it. Considerable special apparatus is required to produce it.

The building was insured for about $25,000.

In addition to Mr. McLeod the members of the board of managers of the House of Hoo Hoo are Mr. Jennings, W. E. Burrows, James E. Lang and W. A. Bonner, all of St. Louis. George E. Watson was day editor of the building.

"RADIUM DANCE" MAKES A HIT.

HAPPY MOTHER'S TOUCHING STORY

Of Baby's Dreadful Suffering from Eczema.

CURED BY CUTICURA.

Now His Skin Is as White as a Snow Flake.

"A terrible rash broke out on Charlie's poor little face and spread to his neck, chest and back. I had never seen anything quite like it before," writes Mrs. Helena Rath of 821 10th Ave., N. Y. City. "The skin rose in little lumps, and blisters came out. My baby's skin was hot, and he did suffer. He wouldn't eat, and night after night I walked the floor with him, weak as I was. Often I had to stop because I felt faint and my back throbbed with pain. But the worst pain of all was to see my poor little boy burning with those nasty sores. At last I was persuaded by a friend across the street to try the Cuticura Remedies. She gave me some Cuticura Ointment—I think the box was about half full—and a piece of Cuticura Soap. I followed the directions, bathing Charlie and putting that nice Ointment on the sores. Little by little, but so surely, Charlie and I both got more peace by day and more sleep by night. The sores sort of dried up and went away, and now Charlie is cured completely."

"Yes, that fat little boy by the window is Charlie, and his skin is as white as a snowflake, thanks to the Cuticura Remedies. I think everybody should know about the Soap and Ointment, and if I am going to help other mothers with sick babies, go ahead and publish what I have told you."

Sold throughout the world. Official Dispatches From Czar's Generals in the Field Tell of Engagements Which Enemy Usually Wins With Superior Forces.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 24.—Gen. Kuropatkin's latest official dispatch does not carry the military situation further than the views dispatches have already indicated, save that it shows the Japanese to be active north of Feng-Wang-Cheng.

The movement in this direction is interpreted both as a threat to detain as many Russians as possible in the northern part of Liao Tung peninsula and as a protection of the Chinese flank against a counter-move on the part of Gen. Kuropatkin in case the opposing armies should become seriously engaged in the vicinity of Haikou.

The general staff has received the following dispatch from Lieut.-Gen. Sakharoff under date of June 22:

"At 8 o'clock on the morning of June 21 the Japanese vanguard resumed its advance against our outposts four miles south of Senchien. The outposts retired slowly toward Senchien and further on in the direction of Kai Chau.

"At noon a Japanese column consisting of nine squadrons of cavalry, a battery of artillery and a considerable number of infantry, including a detachment in the direction of Fuchen. Other strong columns of the enemy appeared and the Japanese occupied Senchien toward evening with over 10,000 men. A bridge of cavalry and 32 guns.

"According to information received from our agents and inhabitants, the enemy, over a division strong, is concentrated southward of Capan Pass, near Chang-Tai-Tien and Long-Liau River.

"The Japanese did not advance beyond Capan Pass in the direction of Tanchi and the enemy, on the morning of the 22d had occupied the village of Jia-pan, Jia-pan, and Panchingding on the Shu-Yen-Liu-Otung road. No new movement has been noticed here.

"Our agents report that a large detachment of all arms advanced from Shu-yan to Khranza on the morning of June 22. A battery of 18 with 450 men, accompanied by a thick fog tried to surprise our vanguard near Vandapuzde on the Shu-Yen-Hai-Cheng road.

"The movement was discovered in time, and the Japanese received volleys from five companies of Russians. The enemy retired to a safe location and lost 100 men. One Russian sharpshooter was wounded.

"The Japanese occupied Vafangtien on the main road to Liao Yang on the evening of June 18 with 1,000 men, including a squadron of cavalry. A detachment of the same strength occupied Chandinji in the valley of the Tien river, seven miles north of Feng-Wang-Cheng.

TOKIO, June 24.—The advance guards of the armies under Gen. Oku and Gen. Noda are in conjunction with Gen. Kuropatkin's troops in the direction of Kaiping.

The Japanese are still in the neighborhood between Kaiping and Hailcheng, where Gen. Kuropatkin holds a strong position.

Gen. Kuropatkin's troops were yesterday at Kuan-ting, about 10 miles west of Shih-kiang.

The Japanese guns in the region are twice as numerous as those of the Russians.

4000 RUSSIANS REPULSED
IN FENG-WANG-CHENG FIGHT

TOKIO, June 24.—2 p. m.—Four thousand Russians, including infantry, cavalry and artillery, attacked the Japanese at Feng-Wang-Cheng, last Tuesday.

The Russians were repulsed and retreated toward Shih-kiang. The Russians lost five killed and 20 wounded. The Japanese loss is not given.

LONDON, June 24.—The Standard's correspondent at Shanghai telegraphs under date of Thursday:

"Gen. Stakelberg is retiring northward from Kai-Ping, but is expected to make another stand at Tashih, where the next severe fight probably will take place. It is reported that the vanguards of the two armies are now within 2000 yards of each other."

PARIS, June 24.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Petit Parisien telegraphs that though the Russian arsenals are working at full capacity, the output is only 1,000 rifles per month. It is practical that Kuropatkin has only 2,000 rifles. This inferiority in artillery gives additional value to the fact that the Russian commander will play a waiting game for many months.

End Their Conventions.

At the closing session of the National Association of Photo-Engravers, Thursday afternoon, it was decided to meet next year in Atlantic City. The following officers were elected: J. L. Shilling of Chicago, president; H. A. Gatchel of Philadelphia; George A. Howell of Toronto, and A. V. Vining of New Haven. Vice-president: E. A. Le Gros of Chicago, secretary, and C. H. Brandon of Nashville, treasurer. The new executive committee for the year consists of C. J. Wolfson, Cleveland; L. H. McKinstry, Minneapolis; B. W. Wilson, Jr., New York; G. H. Gatchel, Chicago; John S. Sanders, St. Louis; John C. Bradson, Pittsburgh; S. P. Blanchard, Boston; John S. Taylor of Minneapolis, was chosen president for both photo-engravers and electrotypers' organizations.

The National Electrotypers' Association at its annual meeting elected the following officers: J. H. Ferguson, President, Detroit; vice-president, L. F. Eaton, Detroit; vice-president, J. W. Johnson, New York; secretary, John J. McElroy, South Bend, Ind.; treasurer, and Theodore Theiss, Chicago, sergeant-at-arms. The new executive committee consists of W. C. Jones, Philadelphia; A. Ringler, New York, and Ed Westman, Chicago.

TOMORROW IS YOUR LAST CHANCE TO PROFIT BY OUR OFFER OF $15 and $18 Men's Outing Suits for $8.50

Here is a final offer you positively cannot afford to ignore—these seasonable and sensible outing suits (coats and pants) are even better than the ordinary $15 and $18 suits. They are of the May Co.'s high standard clothes-craft, and represent a special fortunate purchase—we captured the entire lot at our own figure. At this wonderful selling price of $8.50 there is not a single reason why this great third floor shouldn't be jammed tomorrow. There are Homespuns in plain and figured effects, Cheviots in stripes, and new Scotch flannels in plaid and mottled effects. Coats come in single and double-breasted sacks, skeleton backs, quarter lined with fine mohair or serge, some with silk. The coats have hand-worked concave shoulders and hand-padded collars, they fit close to the neck and are shape retaining. The trousers are cut full in the hip and thigh, with belt straps at waist—to be worn with or without suspender attachment. Every suit is carefully finished and fit perfectly.

$8.50

Not a Suit worth less than $15—most of them are actual $18 value.

Investigate Our "Hungerford System" of Trouser Making.

Let Us Tell You First of the Cloth

The Hungerford system represents the most scientific handling. The fabric is subjected to the London cold water shrinking process, great bolts of cloth are stretched vertically on huge rollers and sprinkled automatically with cold water until thoroughly wet—this is done as the rollers revolve. The cloth is then placed in the drying-room for a period of two weeks and repeatedly run through two thousand horse-power pressure finishing machines, until it has produced that rich surface only impossible to secure in any other way.

Now, a Word as to the Making

The waist of the Hungerford system of trousers is cut low and round on an even waist line—the old-fashioned, unnecessary buckles straps are done away with, the belt outlines are gracefully bowed, producing that graceful silhouette in rear, the belt is made of leather, tapered to a taper with exact proportions to the heel and have the London roll or plain bottom. These trousers are perfectly designed to fit and stay in place without the aid of suspenders, which are retailing in the ready-to-wear markets of the city for $7.00 and $8.00, but the ridiculously low price at which we captured a few thousand pairs, enables us to reduce the Hungerford system of trousers to perfection tomorrow morning (Saturday) at a price that will move them with a rush—FOUR DOLLARS.

ENDS LIFE IN MEMORIAL HOME

George Gowan, Once Prominent in City Affairs, Commits Suicide
During Illness.

George Gowan, 75 years old, once prominent in the city's affairs, killed himself at midnight in his room at Memorial Home, Grand and Magnolia avenues, by shooting himself in the mouth with a 32-caliber revolver.

The shot was fired as he sat in a rocking chair in his room. He was found sitting in the chair, dead, two hours later.

Pain caused him by stomach trouble was apparently what caused the act. He had been in an inmate of the home for several years. He was a fine type of old gentleman and was well liked by all. He had been ill for some time and complained of a good deal of pain in his stomach and had been heard to say that it would kill him, but it was not considered serious.

Nobody thought that it was necessary to take any precautions, and none were taken.

Thursday night Mr. Gowan retired at the usual time. At midnight Mrs. Moormen, occupying an adjoining room, heard a noise and went to see what it was. Mrs. Mason, the superintendent, and others, and a policeman was called in. He made a search of the room of Gowan, but found nothing and as nobody suspected that the sound could have come from his room, no attention was paid to it.

It was suspected that the sound might have been made by the explosion of a fire cracker outside somewhere, and the policeman did not pay any attention to it.

Mrs. Moormen could not sleep, and two hours later she aroused Mrs. Mason and told her the noise she had heard was from Mr. Gowan's room. There was no response to knocks, and the door was forced and Mr. Gowan was found sitting in a rocking chair dead, with the revolver beside him.

The deceased had two daughters in the city, Mrs. John H. Crocker and Mrs. W. C. Cozens, and he also had several grandchildren.

SAY OLNEY'S STAR IS RISING ONE

Ten Pennsylvania Delegates Favor
Massachusetts Man—Have Bryan
Letter Favoring Him for President.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., June 24.—"Keep your eyes on Richard Olney of Massachusetts if you want to see a statesman whose star is rising," said a prominent Pennsylvania Democrat here after attending a caucus of a number of delegates from this state to the St. Louis convention.

The 19 delegates present with the exception of one were in favor of Olney, and this one delegate became an advocate of the Massachusetts man when he received a letter from Bryan, the author of which will be presented at St. Louis. The contents of this letter are kept secret, but it is said that it was sprung as a surprise at the convention.

Ex-Congressman James B. Reilly says that Olney has the ideal qualifications for the presidency.

MOTHER PROUD OF FAIRBANKS

She Believes, However, That He
Would Have Preferred to Remain
Senator From Indiana.

SPRINGFIELD, O., June 24.—The mother of Senator Fairbanks, Mrs. Mary Adelaide Fairbanks, lives in this city with her daughter, Mrs. M. L. Milligan.

She is 74 years old. She is of the opinion that her son would have preferred to remain a senator instead of becoming the nominee for vice-president.

"I was in Washington last winter at his home," she said, "and many men came to see him in regard to his being a candidate for vice-president. I am, of course, very proud that he should have been nominated, and particularly since there was such a strong demand for him that he could hardly be chosen. I am sure he will do a great many things for the country.

Mrs. Fairbanks received an affectionate message from her son less than an hour after the convention had adjourned.

Senator Fairbanks has extensive manufacturing interests in this city, and owns much property here. The mother visited his mother here about two weeks ago.

The letters of Miss Merkley, whose picture is printed above, and Miss Claussen, prove beyond question that thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries and womb are annually cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well.

My heartiest thanks are sent to you for the great good you have done me.—Sincerely yours, Miss MARGARET MERKLEY, 275 Third St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Miss Claussen Saved from a Surgical Operation.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It seems to me that all the endorsements that I have read of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound do not express one-half of the virtue the great medicine really possesses. I know that it saved my life and I want to give the credit where it belongs. I suffered from ovarian trouble for five years, had three operations and spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicines but this did not cure me after all.

However, what doctors and medicines failed to do, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. Twenty bottles restored me to perfect health and I feel sure that had I known of its value before, and let the doctors alone, I would have been spared all the pain and expense that that operation cost me. If the women who are suffering, and the doctors do not help them, will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they will not be disappointed with the results.—Miss CLARA M. CLAUSSSEN, 1307 Penn St., Kansas City, Mo.

PHELPS A DELEGATE FROM ST. LOUIS?

Harry B. Hawes Says Eleventh District Politicians Would Import a Representative.

Harry B. Hawes is home from the St. Joseph convention, announcing the discovery of a startling political scheme which is declared to have for its intended outcome the sending of Col. William H. Phelps of Carthage to the Democratic national convention as a delegate from the Eleventh Congressional district, which is in St. Louis. Mr. Hawes said Friday morning: "I hear at St. Joseph of the effort to send Col. Phelps to the national convention from my district. There are 22,000 Democratic voters in the Eleventh district. It would be a good idea. Ed Butler should be able to select from this large number of Democrats two residents of the district whose legal and actual residence is in Carthage, over 300 miles from St. Louis. Col. Phelps has never said to me personally that he would consider running in my district, but meetings have been held, I find, and the matter has been very thoroughly discussed with some gentlemen in this district."

The gentlemen to whom Mr. Hawes refers are said by one of his political associates to be the Rev. Thomas E. Barrett, James P. Miles and James Carlisle, and the success of the plan to win over the Eleventh district for the national convention to be accomplished through the free distribution of transportation.

It is understood that Phil Dwyer and his friends from the Twenty-sixth ward control the situation in the Eleventh district.

Dwyer is sergeant-at-arms of the House of Delegates, an organization in which Ed

Butler exercises great influence.

Another color page presents the quainter side of the Fair. It shows a series of automobilia and other speedy and luxurious equipages flying about at breakneck speed.—a motor boat, a racing auto, a racing boat. It's a picture page with much of human and animal comedy, and it's likely to make you appreciate the blessings of the "World's Fair in Colors" series. Dispatch "World's Fair in Colors" series is materially enriched by Sunday's color page.

There has been an astonishing development concerning a great feature at the Fair. It is the very last thing you would expect to find, too, in a amazed multitudes and the experts alike.

A seventeenth century romance at the World's Fair is the "Midgets" and the midgets are the most pious of woolings supplying its action—that's what has been going on under the roof of the World's Fair. The midgets are the children of wedding bells is in the air. The story might properly be set in the days of the old-time Courtship, but—well, it simply seems as if Father Time must have gone backward some 300 years in order to make his appearance is appreciably told and illustrated.

A new world's champion amateur, the world's most popular, is coming to St. Louis to take part in the Olympic sports at the World's Fair. He's an American and a wonder, and he has just puzzled one of the British experts by defeating all England with a marvelous skill that defies analysis. This interesting sportsman and his equipment are described and pictured in detail.

A wonderful tribe of pygmies, some red and some black, some fat and some like ants and an abdominal development that strains their spinal columns into the shape of the letter S, is coming to St. Louis to take part in the Olympic sports at the World's Fair. He's an American and a wonder, and he has just puzzled one of the British experts by defeating all England with a marvelous skill that defies analysis. This interesting sportsman and his equipment are described and pictured in detail.

The celebrated "King of the Rustlers," the last desperado in the western country, has just been captured himself for the first time. He died with his boots on, shot from the saddle in a thrilling race with officers of the law, and the story of his life is a romance of crime that days of Dick Turpin and Claude Duval. Yet in reality he was merely John D. Lee, the notorious criminal who once organized the outlaws of the Mississippi valley into the strongest band of highwaymen ever known. The story of his fitting death and typical life is strikingly illustrated.

The man who will nominal as Parker in St. Louis is skilfully described and pictured by Kate Carew in a most interesting manner. He will be a prominent figure in the World's Fair. He is an eloquent Texan, who has risen to distinction in New York by fighting the battles of the Negroes. His friend Judge Allen B. Parker in nomination for the presidency is expected to be a prominent figure in the World's Fair. You'll be particularly interested in him for the reason that he comes from our part of the country and is considered to be the most eloquent speaker of the approaching convention.

EGYPT'S PRINCE FOUND ONLY TO BE LOST AGAIN

Since and Princes Abbas Pasha Hamim, Who Have Been in City a Week Incognito, Will Leave for West Today.

ARE REGISTERED AT HOTEL
AS MR. AND MRS. MOHAMMED

Successfully Elude the Public and Deny Even World's Fair Official a Glimpse of Themselves—She Wears Heavy Veil.

Egypt's Prince and his royal wife, for whom Fair officials have been searching all week, have been found.

The Prince and Princess Abbas Pasha Hamim are at the Hamilton Hotel and they have been there since June 19, but before Friday night they will be speeding away from the city, lost again almost as soon as found.

"Mr. and Mrs. A. Mohammed of Cairo, Egypt," and the Prince and Princess are the two and the same. Investigation by the Post-Dispatch Friday left this in no doubt. Inhabibben Wahby Bey, master of the prince's household, and Zekeria Zeiki Bey, a secret service man, who are also at the hotel, deny it with a twinkle of vast merriment in their eyes.

The royal party will leave St. Louis at 2:15 o'clock over the Burlington for Kansas City. There they will change to the Santa Fe and proceed to the grand canyon of the Colorado River. The other two were received at the Hamilton Hotel on June 18. The prince registered himself and wife as Mr. and Mrs. A. Mohammed and the others registered under them. The prince and princess were assigned to room 118, and they have occupied it ever since. The prince and other men have taken their meals in the dining room. The princess has had her seat in her apartment. She has not been seen about the hotel except when she and the prince departed for the Fair and returned, and then she was always veiled.

Princess' First Appearance.

That is, it was that way until noon Friday. Then, for the first time, she appeared in the dining room, joining the prince and the other men, who had preceded her. Her heavy black veil was lifted for the first time and there was a faint look upon it. The prince was the full-feature face of a healthy and happy young man, with three very different from the face of an American woman of that age. It was seen that her complexion is not as dark as her hair, but she has dark brown hair and brown eyes. She is five feet seven and plump.

What may prove to be a discovery of great value was found Thursday noon in Forest Park, southwest of the Mines and Metallurgy building at the Fair, when a drill, being operated in the mining gulch, penetrated a vein of anthracite coal, two feet seven and plump.

Several months ago soft coal was found on the grounds, but the finding of the anthracite is heralded as entirely unexpected, as it had not been known there since his arrival.

The master of the household said Friday that "Mr. and Mrs. A. Mohammed" were friends traveling with him, but the twinkle in his eye showed that he had kept the secret well. He said that the one he had just got off as one of his best.

The prince is a little fellow, an inch and a half taller than the princess, and weighs 130 pounds. His eyes are blue and he wears a light mustache. His hair is light and is auburn. He wears a light gray suit and smokes cigarettes constantly. He speaks English readily. This is his first trip to America.

He is to the princess.

Gallagher and O'Donnell Lose in Court of Last Resort.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 24.—William J. Gallagher and John O'Donnell, convicted of jury bribing in Cook County, must serve the sentences imposed upon them, the supreme court having affirmed the decree of the lower court.

The Fair up to now has been the appointment of Fair officials and Egyptian officials connected with the exhibits that the royal pair in order that they might hear them, will be keen when they learn that the couple have been found only to be lost again.

RIVER BULLETIN.

ST. LOUIS, June 24.—The efforts of the numerous objecting property owners to block the completion of $80,000,000 contract in Chicago failed when the supreme court denied a writ of mandamus to the county to force it to take up the bills of exceptions. The proposed seven-mile wall will cover eleven square miles where 30,000 pieces of property were affected. Sixty-six objectors appeared. The objectors are divided into several classes according to the character of their objections.

The objectors who brought these proceedings had the case heard by Judge Carter, who denied all their claims. The court, upon the first objectors, those involved in this case, came forward and asked Judge Carter to no exceptions, continuing the proceedings. The objectors were represented by other classes of objectors, but not by those interested in this case. Carter refused to accept the evidence and objections not filed by them. In other words, these objectors seek to get out of the bill of exceptions evidence submitted by other objectors in other cases. The supreme court sustains Judge Carter in refusing to sign the bill.

POST-DISPATCH DAILY RECORD OF FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

DECLINE IN WABASH UNSETTLES THE MARKET

Passing of Interest on the Debenture A Bonds Weakened Early Prices—Later Buying of Union Pacific Steadies
the Market and the Close Is Quiet.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 24.—Under the unfavorable influence of the announcement that the directors of the Wabash Railroad had yesterday decided to pass the semiannual interest of 3 per cent on the debenture, "A" bonds of the company at the opening found prices very irregular. Wabash preferred dropped a full point on the first two sales recorded, with a slight recovery soon following. President Bamford said that the surplus from which the company had been derived did not justify the payment of the interest at this time. The extraordinary expenditures at the London Purchase Exhibition at St. Louis and the unusual amount of material on the Wabash are given as the elements causing the necessary reduction.

The London market advanced on Americans, although consuls showed further fractional decline of 1/16. Copper 20, decline 1/16; Atchison 20, changed; Brooklyn 43%; unchanged; Baltimore 10, 1/16; unchanged; Missouri Pacific 10, 1/16; unchanged; Rock Island 47, 1/16; Pennsylvania 115, unchanged; Chicago 14, advance 1/16; Southern Pacific 46, unchanged; and after opening at 1/16, a decline of 1 point from yesterday's 1/16, a decline of 1/16; Steel common 56, unchanged; United States Steel preferred 56, unchanged.

Operations and changes were as follows: Copper 20, decline 1/16; Atchison 20, changed; Brooklyn 43%; unchanged; Baltimore 10, 1/16; unchanged; Missouri Pacific 10, 1/16; unchanged; Rock Island 47, 1/16; Pennsylvania 115, unchanged; Chicago 14, advance 1/16; Southern Pacific 46, unchanged; and after opening at 1/16, a decline of 1 point from yesterday's 1/16, a decline of 1/16; Steel common 56, unchanged; United States Steel preferred 56, unchanged.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Weakness of the Wabash issues was the feature of the opening of the stock market today. The preferred stock for the common 3% was 22, and the common 3%. The passing of the interest on the debenture as was the case of the Americans, was the main factor in the decline. United Railways preferred was only 20, and the common 20, unchanged. Some stocks were fairly well maintained.

The market was quiet, with the exception of the London Purchase, which was much more pronounced in the second hour, and, under a vigorous drive by the London market, the market was closed.

Operations and changes were as follows: Copper 20, decline 1/16; Atchison 20, changed; Brooklyn 43%; unchanged; Baltimore 10, 1/16; unchanged; Missouri Pacific 10, 1/16; unchanged; Rock Island 47, 1/16; Pennsylvania 115, unchanged; Chicago 14, advance 1/16; Southern Pacific 46, unchanged; and after opening at 1/16, a decline of 1 point from yesterday's 1/16, a decline of 1/16; Steel common 56, unchanged; United States Steel preferred 56, unchanged.

On the trust stocks, Commonwealth was 21, 1/16; Standard Oil 20, 1/16; and Merchantile Trust sold for the first time in some weeks at 23.

The local session this morning showed some improvement over that of yesterday in point of activity and sales recorded, and prices were at the same level as yesterday. The local market was quiet, with the exception of the London Purchase, which was much more pronounced in the second hour, and, under a vigorous drive by the London market, the market was closed.

SOCIETY WHICH IS NOT SOCIETY

Hostesses' Organization at the Fair
Is for Purposes of Sociability.

IT IS ORGANIZED "BECAUSE."

Women Expect to Find Social Relaxation From Social Duties by Getting Together.

Here's the latest.
A society of society women formed for purposes of sociability.

The hostesses of the various State buildings at the Fair are the members and its name is the "Louisiana Purchase Exposition Hostesses' Association."

It was organized Thursday morning with 22 enthusiastic hostesses as attendees. Twenty other hostesses sent telegrams and promised to join soon as they could.

Miss Parker Fisher of Maryland was elected president, Mrs. Dore Lyon of New York, secretary, and Mrs. Dell Small of Massachusetts, treasurer. The first meeting to complete the organization will be held next Thursday in the Alaska building.

Woman's place is used in arranging the organization which is to be women's craft sociability. It's "because," say the hostesses.

After receiving guests at their various homes, the hostesses entertain them with a hundred or more visitors that the building is "perfectly lovely" and telling several hundred others to come to the building when these hostesses frankly admit they grow tired of society manners and want to be sociable.

The organization will not undertake to tell the directors how to run the Exposition. Neither will it try to fix the limit of the social life.

"It's to be purely social and personal," said one of the organizers, and she emphasized the "purely" like the label on a perfume syrup bottle.

"Gossip?" she asked in apparent surprise. "Of course not. What would we gossip about?"

"We just want a little society of our own and a place to meet where we can get away from the social life."

"We'll know more about it after the constitution is adopted Thursday."

"Do we need a constitution to tell us how to be sociable?" "Why, of course. How could we have a society without a constitution?"

You see we've learned to be business-like since we became hostesses."

HEAVY TRACK MEANS DEFEAT OF GREAT HERMIS

The probability, almost the certainty, that the track at the Fair Grounds will be heavy tomorrow puts an entirely different complexion on the prospects of the most promising candidates in the World's Fair handicap.

A heavy track will not only insure the defeat of Hermis, but it will probably prevent the mighty son of Hermenece from appearing in the contest.

On a muddy track he will have no chance whatever and he will likely be beaten.

The same applies to Colonial Girl, on whom the hopes of St. Louis are centered. She also is no mudlark and a heavy track is death to her hopes.

But Gold Heels and Bernays and Witful will be especially aided by this action of Jupiter Pluvius.

There is no better mudlark in the West than Witful, and with Fuller to ride, her chances at the present moment are exceedingly bright.

Only one more day and the great racing event of 1904 will be here.

On Saturday afternoon, between 3 and 4 o'clock, at the track of the St. Louis Fair Association, the World's Fair Handicap will be run before the huge crowd that ever assembled at a sporting event in St. Louis.

For the last two years this great race has been the theme of horsemen and turf followers in every section of America. The subject has ever been discussed by prominent sporting writers in England and on the continent of Europe, and the solemn pronouncements of royalists and the like that Edward VII was among those who were specially invited to make an entry in the race, but his majesty has made it an unalterable rule not to permit any of his thoroughbreds to participate in handicaps for fear that undue partiality might be shown to his representatives.

The World's Fair Handicap has all the elements of greatness about it. The prize itself has a grandeur of its own, the greatest that has ever been offered in this country for a race of this character, and the contestants are all in the very first rank of thoroughbreds. Dick Welles, the champion miler of the world; Hermis, the winner of the Suburban Handicap; Irish Lad, Metropolitan and Brooklyn Handicap winner; Bernays, Gold Heels, Colonial Girl and Witful are some of the giants who will measure strides in the race.

This is the greatest collection of thoroughbreds that has ever appeared in any racing event in the West, and few, if any, have ever equalled it in point of class in any contest over the Metropolitan circuit. On any kind of a track the race is bound to be a desperately-contested one. On a muddy track it will be hard to choose between Gold Heels, McChesney, Bernays, and Witful, while on a fast track Hermis, Colonial Girl, Ort Welles, McGee and Moharib will travel with the speed of a tornado. On a fast track it is a certainty that a new track record will be established.

Will Greatly Help Racing.

The inauguration of such a race as the World's Fair handicap cannot fail to have a most beneficial effect on the racing game in Missouri. Chicago used to be the life and center of racing in the West and is still prominent in that branch of sport. But with the practical elimination of Washington Park, St. Louis becomes a more important factor in racing than it has ever been and is destined to become the big prize of the "apartments of kings" in the southwest. Its geographical position and climate peculiarly fit it for this position.

The victor in the World's Fair handicap can rightfully lay claim to the position of champion of the United States for 1904. The victory of Hermis in the Suburban stamps him as the best horse on the Metropolitan circuit. If he wins the handicap Saturday he will have established a clear title to leadership in the turf world. If he is defeated then the championship of 1904 will be represented by a western thoroughbred. The establishment of such a racing event as the World's Fair handicap marks a new era in the history of the sport, and contribute largely to the development of the breeding industry in Missouri and the Southwest. Missouri has already one of the greatest stud farms in the country at Woodlands and the establishment of rich stakes is exactly what the thoroughbred industry needs to place it in a position of rivalry with the bluegrass regions of Kentucky and the famous ranches of California.

Colonial Girl Will Watch.

In the days when Salvator and Tenny fought their mighty battles in the East all the turf was electrified. But there never was a racing event in the country that will be watched with keener interest than the one which will take place at the Fair Grounds Saturday.

The contest cannot be divested of sentimentalism. Hermis, the best in the East, will represent that division of the country, and Bernays, Colonial Girl, Gold Heels and McGee will be the standard bearers of the West.

Two years ago Hermis was the greatest horse in training on the Atlantic coast and his recent brilliant victory in the Suburban shows clearly that he has regained his superb form of the year. He is now 5 years old, trained to the hour, and fit to run for a King's ransom. This may not be the place to prophesy, but in the light of his record, the western representatives look like pygmies compared to him, and on a fast track it is reasonably certain that he will capture the big prize of 1904. His victory in the Suburban will penalize him several pounds, but a little additional weight never stopped a really great horse, and Hermis can be caught by no other name.

He will have a marked advantage in Gold Heels a special preparation for the World's Fair race ever since last fall. Gold Heels won the fastest Suburban handicap on record and was admitted the greatest handicap horse of his day. He originally went wrong from striking one foot against the other in a race or "hitting himself," as a horseman would say.

The horse worked some sensational trials at Nashville last spring and went well here until about three weeks ago when he pulled up lame and it was discovered that the horses were trying to bow him over.

Hayes let him up on the horse for two weeks and then commenced to train him again. He worked a mile and an eighth Monday evening over a heavy track in 1:13 1/2 and pulled up sound. He may prove a factor in the race if it happens to be decided over a heavy or sloppy track. Few horse owners fancy his chances to any extent, however. They have little confidence in the horse because of the fact that he has not been to the races in over two years. Gold Heels was born in 1902. He went wrong that fall and was bought by E. J. Arnold of "get-rich-quick" fame. When Arnold's game collapsed Gold Heels was auctioned off for the benefit of his creditors. Hinde and Baker, two known Kentucky breeders, bought the horse for a song. Tom Hayes is training him on shares for them.

Gold Heels starts he will be ridden by D. Austin, the well-known colored jockey.

Bernays will be ridden in the great race by Jockey Cormack, who was developed at Met Springs, and subsequently achieved great success on the Metropolitan tracks.

He is Redfern's first trip to St. Louis.

This is Redfern's first trip to St. Louis. He has ridden at the first Kinloch meeting. He has since developed into one of the star race riders of this country. The late W. C. Whitney paid Redfern an annual retainer of $15,000 last season. It is the consensus of opinion in western turf circles that the World's Fair Handicap lies between the four horses. Hermis will be made the post favorite, with Bernays, Colonial Girl and the Hildreth entry, McChesney and Witful, next in favor. Bernays and Colonial Girl were the favorites in the future book betting on the big race until it was definitely announced that Hermis would start. Now the Suburban winner has the call.

The uncertain factor in the World's Fair Handicap is Gold Heels. The greatest horse of his year on the American turf, Tom Hayes has been giving Gold Heels a special preparation for the World's Fair race ever since last fall. Gold Heels won the fastest Suburban handicap on record and was admitted the greatest handicap horse of his day. He originally went wrong from striking one foot against the other in a race or "hitting himself," as a horseman would say.

This is Redfern's first trip to St. Louis.

He has ridden at the first Kinloch meeting.

He has since developed into one of the star

race riders of this country. The late W. C.

Whitney paid Redfern an annual retainer of $15,000 last season. It is the consensus of Rome Respes will give Cormack $5000 if he lands Bernays first in the big race. Bernays is John W. Gates' choice for the World's Fair handicap. Mr. Gates thinks so well of Bernays' chances that he advised his friend and business associate John A. Drake not to claim Ort Welles. Samuels had the same reason for the fact that Bernays had the race already won. Ort Welles is the 3-year-old full brother of Dick Welles, the mile champion of 1903. Mr. Gates will be here himself to see the race, and has already booked a private box at the Fair Grounds for Saturday.

Bernays is by Wadsworth-Modjeska and was named for Dr. Augustus C. Bernays, the well-known St. Louis surgeon. T. H. Stevens of the Walnut Hill stud bred Bernays, named him for Dr. Bernays and sold the colt to Rome Respes for $5000. That was a lucky star for Stevens. Besides $5000 for Bernays he sold Wyeth to John A. Drake for $12,000 and Gallagher to Respes for $6000. Bernays showed what a horse he was when he ran third in the American Derby of 1903, after getting off badly in a large field. With only 100 pounds up Saturday he will take a world of weight in the World's Fair Handicap.

Rome Respes, the owner of Bernays, has a third interest in the Wyeler future book. Bernays has been practically held out in this book and Respes stands to win a fortune in bets if the horse can land the rich price for him.

Colonial Girl, one of the St. Louis favorites, belongs to Otto Stifel, the well-known North St. Louis brewer. Colonial Girl was bred by the late C. W. Whitney. He was, incidentally, and his wife, St. Gertie, are both from the country. Colonial Girl won the California Oaks of her year. She has improved steadily since then and some of her best races have been this spring at Louisville and Chicago. Charlie Rose has given Colonial Girl a special preparation for the stake and with the pull she has in the weights it will take a real good horse to beat her.

Otto Stifel, her owner, has been a staunch patron of the turf for the past 15 years. He was originally interested in the horse when he was a yearling.

He looks fit as a fiddle and will be ridden by the well-known colored jockey, D. Austin, the well-known colored jockey.

He has since developed into one of the star

race riders of this country. The late W. C.

Whitney paid Redfern an annual retainer of good ones as Vortex, Wautuga, Pop Gray, Jim Head, Servitor and other famous runners of the early 90s. Stifel was then the best in the West.

John W. Schorr's Moharib is the most fancied 3-year-old in the West. This colt won the Kansas City Derby and ran a smashing race in the American Derby at Washington Park last Saturday. He will be ridden in the World's Fair handicap by Jockey Aubuchon, who has piloted the colt in all his best races this season.

Witful, the Hildreth candidate, won the Crescent City Derby of her year. She will have the advantage of being prepared for the race by the greatest turf mechanician in the West, namely, Sam C. Hildreth. Witful will also have riding in the saddle, the presumption being that Grover Cleveland Fuller or Milton Henry will have the mount on her. Fuller rode Highball to victory in the American Derby last Saturday. Henry was a star rider in France two years ago.

E. R. Thomas, the owner of Hermis, is son of the late Gen. Samuel Thomas of Ohio. E. R. Thomas paid $60,000 for Hermis. The son of Hermenece is the highest-priced thoroughbred sold in this country since Charles Reed paid $100,000 for St. Baise. Dr. Drake did not claim Ort Welles. Sambo, McGee, Old Stone and Judge Himes were not taken seriously as candidates for the big stake, except by their respective owners. Sambo is only a cheap selling plater. Judge Himes had one chance of being a factor, and that will be if the track happens to be sloppy. He is a high-class horse in the mud, although his race last Saturday in the Club Members' handicap was a decided disappointment to his admirers.

McGee started out this spring by running a splendid race in the Montgomery Cup, but his performances since then have been disappointing and he will hardly get any Saturday. Old Stone lacks the class to beat horses of the kind that he will meet in this stake.

The Fair Grounds track where the big race will be run has been the scene of some notable turf contests in past years. Miss Woodford won the $10,000 Eclipse stakes at this track in the early 80s from Volante and Alta. Freeland was to have started on the track last Monday evening.

When the passengers landed, however, it was believed that Mr. Loomis had been drowned. His whereabouts have proved frustrious.

It is believed that Mr. Loomis has left the ship at Plymouth, but so far all attempts to trace him there or in London have failed.

Additional interest attaches to the mystery by reason of the fact that he was the bearer of important dispatches. The London papers are giving much attention to the disappearance of Mr. Loomis, but none have so far been able to find the least trace of him.

THE NEW BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

"When Israel Was in Bondage" Sodini's records a continuation of Biblical history in "The Yoke," by Elizabeth Miller (Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis), one of the most ambitious and painstaking novels of the season. Its story carries the reader back to the times of the Israelite exodus. Its scenes being laid in the Egypt of that day, picturesque and full of mystery.

The truth soon becomes evident that Miss Miller qualified for her task with an unusual degree of thoroughness. In its essential details of atmosphere, customs and character, "The Yoke" cannot fail to satisfy those who insist upon historical accuracy. The author seems to have realized that this is especially imperative in the case of romances that take the Bible as their source of supply for fictional material.

She has also handled her themes with consistent dignity, thus producing a novel which may be read without a sense of uneasiness due to the improper utilization of the treasures of Holy Writ. It is not unlikely, indeed, that "The Yoke" may become a prime favorite in Sunday School libraries along the lines upon which rests the popularity of "Ben Hur."

The story itself is fascinating and carefully wrought out. It is not a new story—the tale of the patriotic Egyptian Kenken's love for the persecuted Israelites. Girl Rachel has its parallel in many romances of different historical epochs—but absolutely new stories are not to be expected in the old age of a story-loving world. It is sufficient that worn plots and dramatic motives be treated in a reasonably fresh spirit, and this is what Miss Miller has done in "The Yoke," with literary skill above the average. Her book is one that may be read with sustained interest, its denouement not necessarily foreshadowed in its climax developed with due regard for a reader's relish of increasing intensity in situation and incident.

Majestic figures cross the pages of "The Yoke" the most impressive of which are those of Moses and Aaron, subtly permitted by the author, however, to be outlined in shadow rather than in bold relief, and the vivid human contrast of the oppressed Israelites, God's chosen people, and the proud, tyrannical Egyptians, already doomed to suffer for their arrogant sins, is finely made. Especially forceful is the author in creating a vital conception of the position of the Hebrews in bondage, a noble race, sorely tried yet bravely bending the neck to bitter subjugation. It is from the two conflicting races, the conqueror and the conquered, that the dramatic personae of "The Yoke" are drawn, strong figures, each of whom plays a legitimate appointed part in the drama.

Miss Miller is to be congratulated upon her achievement. She undertook an arduous and dangerous task in writing an historical novel upon so august a theme as that presented by "the days when the Lord redeemed the children of Israel from the bondage of Egypt." She has demonstrated her worthiness to enter such a field. It is not perlud to predict that "The Yoke" is destined to a longer lease of life than that allotted to the average novel of these times of multitudinous and more or less made-you-wait historical romances.

Mark Twain's Daughter
Mark Twain's daughter, Miss Clara Clemens, made a successful debut as a singer in Florence some weeks ago. Her voice and her method were warmly praised by the Roman papers. Miss Clemens has sung at private gatherings of her friends in America, and has always won cordial enthusiasm for her unusual work. She is slender and dark, with the most expressive eyes, and when singing her pose is one of intense, concentrated quiet. The effect, in contrast to a very mobile, significant voice, is strong and artistic.

The Reader Magazine for July
A timely article in the Reader Magazine for July is "Joseph W. Folk and The Forces Behind His Boom for the Presidency." In it the author declares that "Missouri today presents the paradox of a man's enemies endeavoring to present him with the choicest gift in the United States—they wish to make him chief executive of the nation." This is a phase of the situation that has not been fully appreciated. The Democratic national convention, that will be a revelation to many people outside of St. Louis, at least. Another article of immediate interest is "The Making of a War Correspondent," by Edwin Emerson, Jr. He writes from a ripe experience, for he was at the front in the Spanish-American war; was secret agent of the United States Military Information Bureau; was a member of the Rough Riders at San Juan and Santiago, and was decorated by President Castro for gallantry in action during the Colombian-Venezuelan war. Under the title of "The Survival of the Fittest," Francis Lynde continues his important series of articles on railway accidents in America. And in "Pierre Loti on Japan" Israel Zangwill unmercifully scores the French officer, showing how he saw in Japan only the third world went to hell. The author also gives the greatness of the little islanders. Harold MacGrath, Arthur Colton, Kenneth Brown and Wood Leavitt Wilson contribute entertaining fiction. Many other and varied articles, including the story of Blaine's famous Florence letter, together with the gossipy editorial department of Writers and Readers, make the July number of The Reader Magazine one of unusual interest.

Last of the Open-Range Land
An interesting summer trip is being planned by Miss Alice MacGowan and Mrs. Mary M. MacGowan, author of "The Last of the new cattle country story," "Hulah," published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. Information has come to them that the last bit of open-range land in New Mexico has been sold to parties who will remove the cattle and bring in sheep. So they are going out for one last look at the fields which they have made peculiarly their own in fiction. With the vanishing of the open-range, the fencing of pastures, the bringing in of sheep and the breaking up of public domain into small farms, there passes forever the picturesque and elemental life which is told of from the masculine viewpoint in "The Virginian" and from the feminine viewpoint in "Hulah."

It is to be hoped the rumor that G. Bernard Shaw has written a new play, to be produced later by the Irish Dramatic Society, is correct. The rumor also says it has to do with the Englishmen in Ireland. He has already given a picture of the American in England, as seen by Shaw, in "Man and Superman," just published.

No reader who really cares about the serious problems of the day can afford to miss the notable leading article in the June Atlantic upon "The Great Delusion of Our Time," by John H. Denison. Mr. Denison, with both humor and pathos of the times, bemoans the lack of force, its calm conviction of magisterial authority in all matters of belief, and its easy disregard of the moral sense.

Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. announce that the "Life of Walt Whitman" in their "American Men of Letters" series will be written by Elmer Perry, editor of the Atlantic Monthly. "The Life of Lincoln" in the same series will be written by Samuel M. Cawelti, author of "The Gentle Reader," and the "Life of Lowell" will be written by Ferris Greenleaf, associate editor of the Atlantic.

St. Nicholas Magazine has always felt that it appealed more or less to sensible older people, as well as to boys and girls; but not every day do its editors get such letters as come recently from a subscriber who had only two copies ever since the magazine was started, and who writes, "I find nothing better for restful reading at the age of 80."

THE CZAR'S PRIVATE LIFE

He Has Thirty Thousand Servants and Earns a Salary of $4,800,000 a Year

George Weise, in the July Success.

The Czar earns a bigger salary than any other man in the world, for the public exchequer of his country pays him the sum of $1,800,000 per annum for acting as managing director of the Russian Empire, with an area of eight million square miles and a population of one hundred and thirty million persons. But, considering the crushing weight of care and responsibility which he bears on his shoulders, his remuneration, high as it is, does not appear excessive. His salary is paid him in monthly installments of $400,000 each, which are sent to him by a special messenger from the treasury buildings in the form of a check on the National Bank of Russia, just as often as he receives his monthly wages; with the difference, however, that the Czar's talent and industry exercise no influence on his payment. At the same time, he is expected to maintain a certain standard of living which he would be unable to do in the style required of him if he did not possess a private income three or four times as big as his official salary.

He is the owner of over 100 estates, all of which supply him with private residences, and he is also the possessor of 100 palaces and castles, which have to be maintained by his imperial court at a great expense to their owner. He has more servants than any one else in the world for a veritable army of 30,000 domestics, cooks, pages, butlers, grooms, gardeners, and so forth is employed on his hundred or more estates. He possesses over 40 residences which he has never seen, a score of homes which he has never externally, but never inhabited, even for one night, and another score in each of which he has slept on only one occasion. His private stables contain over 500 horses belonging to him, and the herds of cattle feeding on his own lands are esti-

THE FATE OF OLD AGE.

From the New York Press.
It is stated with authority that three out of every four persons over the age of 65 in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales are either in the workhouse or in receipt of charitable assistance. Is old age becoming a crime? Such figures are too terrible to be true.

"Whom the Gods Love Die Young."

When Byron wrote those words he meant unquestionably, that such as were exceptionally brilliant, gifted, prosperous and of great promise were shining marks loved by death. Plautus meant something entirely different, and Plautus was right. He said: "He whom the gods love dies young, while he is in health, has his senses and his judgment." He might have added "while he is able to find a job and can stave off poverty."

Why Not Suicide?

One almost feels tempted to encourage the notion of suicide at 60. Men and women live too long, it would seem. Life is all wrong. Just at the period when most assistance is needed—in the declining years—employments and professions are closed against us. The most sorrowful feature of all existence is the struggle of an octogenarian against biting poverty. Sans eyes, sans taste, sans employment, sans income—sans everything! "Too old at 60" has become "too old at 40."

The Poor House.

What manner of man is he who would allow his father or mother to go to the poor house in the evening of life? Yet the poor houses are always full, and some of the inmates have sons upon whom fortunes smile. The evening of life should be calm and restful; not a humiliation, not a period of heart-gnawing poverty, not a spiral. Instead of "poor houses" let us all get together and erect "palaces for the aged." Make it an honor to pass the remaining years in such a home, not degradation and a disgrace. If all the able-bodied should contribute, our fathers and grandfathers would not approach three-score and ten with horror. What a glorious opportunity for Carnegie or Rockefeller!

After Shooting in Railroad Yards, Belleville Man Returns to Demolish Furniture.

HUMAN TARGET MADE ESCAPE

Wife Out Walking With a Neighbor, for Whom Police Are Looking.

While soft winds from the south were wafting their cooling way across the front porch of the home of James Hays on West Main street in Belleville, Thursday evening, Hays was sitting comfortably in his favorite chair. Mrs. Hays was not there. Neighbors passed by, but paid no particular attention. They called back and passed on. But presently one to whom he called stopped, and, sinking his voice to a heavy whisper, told him Mrs. Hays was out walking with Louis Wolfert.

Hays forgot the cooling breezes and his comfortable chair, and started in pursuit of Mrs. Hays. He went to the point where the neighbor said he had seen her, and then began to track her and her companion.

He found them in the Illinois railroad yards. He did not call the police, or enter into negotiations of any kind. He simply followed them to the ground, picked up a brick, and threw it at the unsuspecting Wolfert.

He did not hit him, but it diverted the attention of Mrs. Hays and Wolfert from each other to the thrower, and Mrs. Hays started toward him, and, remonstrating of such sudden and unkind behavior, Hays remonstrated back and then walked off to look a hand. He whipped out a revolver and began to shoot. His aim was bad, but Hays did not know how soon he would be discovered, and he fled away. He soon caught himself in the act of running, but was not embarrassed by his gun, for he knew that his revolver was still spitting bullets in his general direction.

Mrs. Hays also had begun to run. She had the heart of her husband, and so took a shorter way home, with the result that she entered the portals of the home of James Hays at the same time.

For the space of three minutes neither man nor wife sought an argument. They were too busy for that. What had been left to them, then, as their lungs began to work properly, they began to make charges against each other. For some five minutes they spewed. Hays was kicked out of doors and the glass out of windows, and when he found himself in the act of running, or otherwise break, he threw it on the floor.

Mrs. Hays was so shocked at his behavior that she called the police, and Hays was arrested. Friday morning he was fined $5 and costs by Justice Bedell.

The police are looking for Wolfert, who, it is believed, is a story, has not been at his usual haunts since he took such harm at Hays.

Burns Cottage Admission.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Inasmuch as the question has been asked, whether the Burns Cottage is exempt for the permission to visit the Burns Cottage at the World's Fair, permit me to say that the Burns Cottage is not exempt by any article of association or subscription, and subscribers only are admitted without charge. For every dollar given a certificate of associate membership is given, and the association is granted. The others are taxed the very small sum of 10 cents to meet cost of maintenance. J. W. DE J. President B. C. A.

This is the Reason.
The little label on over the cork means that Guckenheimer Pennsylvania Rye is bottled under U.S. Government supervision; it tells the exact age of the whiskey, shows date of bottling and guarantees 100 per cent purity. At all dealers.

BARBERS' "KING GRAFTER" SAYS HE WILL APPEAL

WILLIAM KANE.

Denies Charge of Grand Larceny on Which He Was Convicted, and Also Says He Is Not Responsible for 'Grafting' in His Barber Shop.

William Kane, known to the police and to the barbers around Union Station as the "King Graftor," was Wednesday afternoon, as told in Post-Dispatch late editions, found guilty of grand larceny by a jury in Judge Taylor's court, and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Kane was arrested at the instance of James Meals, a Kansas farmer, who arrived in the city several weeks ago. Meals was induced to take a room over Kane's barber shop at 175 Market street and was awakened during the night by Kane in his room. He saw Kane search his clothes and take $30 and his gold watch. He was afraid to make an outcry, he said, fearing that Kane had a revolver and would use it if he saw he was discovered.

Kane notified the police of the robbery the following morning and Kane was arrested.

Kane says he will appeal the case. He says he has been hounded by the police ever since he opened his barber shop. Kane also went before the grand jury after he had been convicted, declared that Meals had tried to compromise the case for money and accused him of blackmail, but the grand jury ignored his charge.

The police say Kane earned his title "King Graftor" by the methods of extortion used in his barber shop. Lieut. McKenna, Sergt. Nolte and Sergt. Dressell say that ever since February, when strangers began to come to St. Louis for the Fair, they have been receiving complaints of extortion at Kane's shop.

Some weeks ago Kane's assistant in the shop was arrested and tried in the City

Paul Morton of Illinois to be secretary of the navy.

Victor H. Metcalf of California to be secretary of commerce and labor.

The resignations of Secretary Cortelyou and Attorney-General Knox have been received and accepted, to take effect July 1, and accepted, to take effect July 1, and is a son of the former secretary of agriculture under Cleveland. He announced his intention to offer himself to the Republican party months ago.

Mr. Cortelyou resigns to become chairman of the Republican committee of the state, and because of his appointment as senator from Pennsylvania.

FIRE LOSS AT SHAWNEETOWN.

DAMAGE REACHES $30,000, WITH LESS THAN HALF INSURED.

SHAWNEETOWN, June 24.—The building in which D. L. Rockefeler entered the annual picnic was destroyed by fire yesterday.

The fire started in a barber shop and immediately spread to the building.

The pastor, Dr. Charles A. Eaton, who was to speak at the annual picnic, was unable to catch the special train for Vernon, and the train was held for 15 minutes, but Mr. Rockefeler did not show up, and it left without him. Mr. Rockefeler explained that he had over slept.

Mr. Rockefeler is superintendent of the Shawneetown fair and always attended the annual picnic. Yesterday he promised the pastor, Dr. Charles A. Eaton, that he would be at the annual picnic to catch the special train for Vernon, and the train was held for 15 minutes, but Mr. Rockefeler did not show up, and it left without him. Mr. Rockefeler explained that he had over slept.

FREE FIGHT AT WEST END CLUB

Tommy Brammel, Johnny Regan and Police Put on Extemporaneous Battle Royal.

ATTELL OUTPOINTS REGAN

The 122-Pound Champion Gets Doubtful Decision at Close of Fifteen Dull Rounds.

BY REFEREE SHARPE.
The fight was one of the poorest that I ever referred. I told both boys repeatedly after the first few rounds that they had better fight and quit stalling, but both apparently agreed that the other would score a point. Regan made a great dash and I think would have been entitled to a draw if he fought under the rules of the other rounds.

He continually held and hit in spite of my warnings and refused to break when I ordered them out of clinches. I told him all through the fight that he could expect nothing if he did not fight fairly and he has no reason to be surprised at the result.

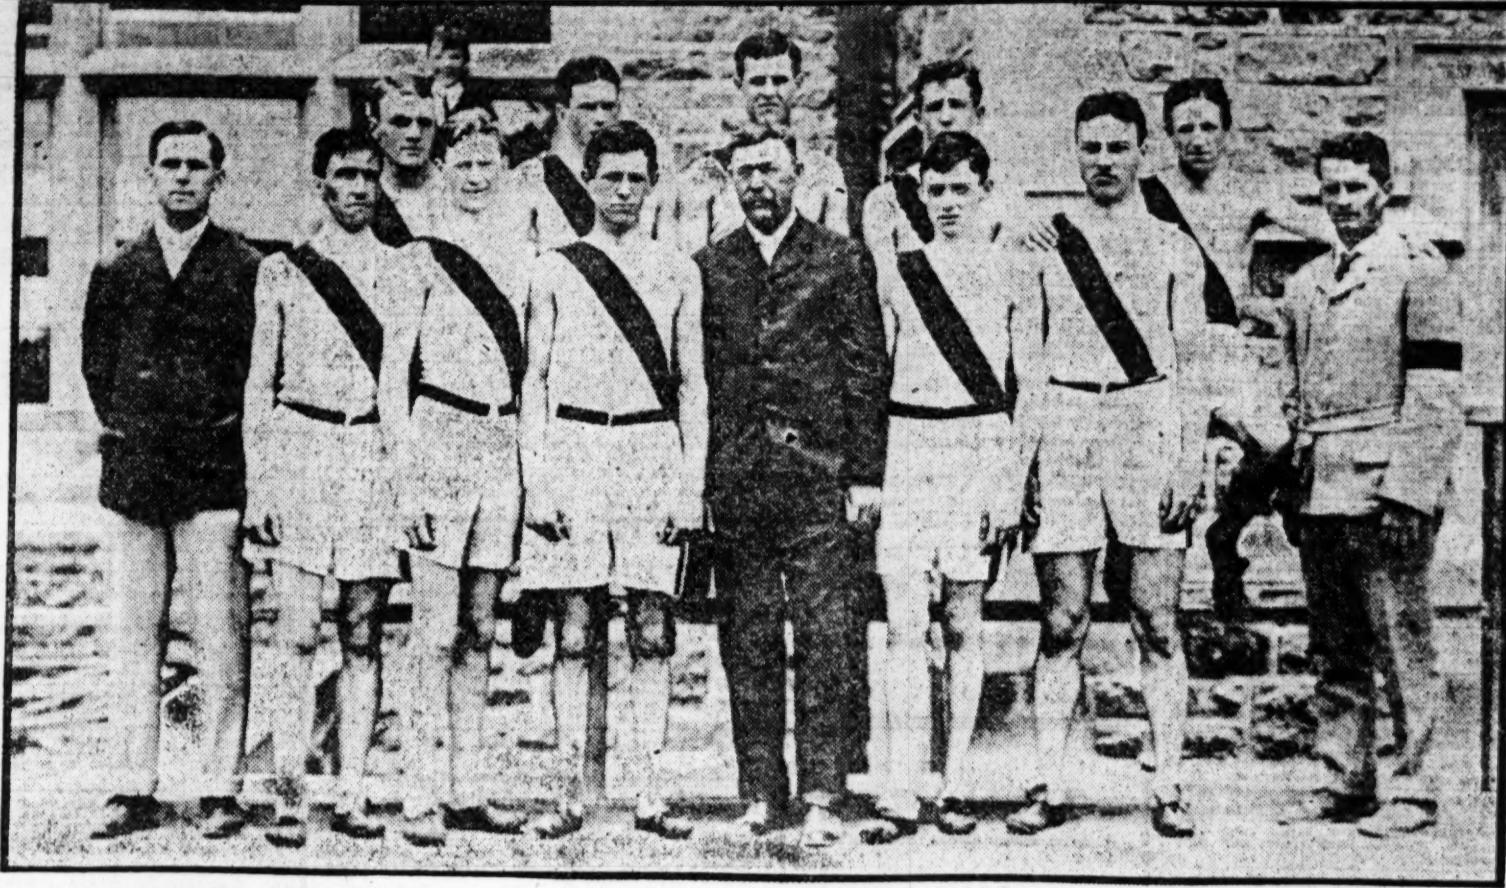

Two preliminaries, a main event and a battle royal, was the boxing card for Thursday evening's entertainment at the West End Club. The last event named was by far the most interesting of the four.

It was entirely extemporeaneous, which only added to the excitement. The principals in the last number of the program were Johnny Regan, who lost the main event to Abe Attell on a decision at the close of the fifteenth round; Tommy Brammel, second to Abe Attell; Referee Sharpe, innocent peacemaker, and Lieut. McKenna of the police.

After Sharpe's decision giving Attell a victory there was joy in the corner of Tommy Brammel, his number one, who decided to pay his compliments to the vanquished. Regan was sitting in his corner with his handlers taking off his gloves when Brammel took a good position a few feet in front of him and gave a fair imitation of a primitive man's dance of triumph. Feeling as he did that the decision was unjust this demonstration failed to have a soothing effect and Regan jumped out of his chair and smashed the reveler on the ring.

Regan rushed him across the ring to Attell's corner, where the two mixed it until Referee Sharpe pulled them apart and pended Brammel in the corner while Regan danced. Regan took toward his chair. The excitement would probably have died then but for the entrance of

Princeton's Team, Entered in Saturday's Olympic Contests

Coach James Robinson of the Princeton University track and field team, which will participate in the intercollegiate meet at the Stadium Saturday afternoon, has had his men indulge in daily morning practice at the Stadium for the past three days.

The Tiger squad is composed of 13 stalwart athletes, who appear to be in the pink of condition. It was this team that triumphed over the Chicago University athletes, when they met in a dual meet at Chicago last Monday. The Princeton lads will endeavor to repeat last Monday's performance, which means that should they meet with success they will capture the meet, as it is a foregone conclusion that the winner of Saturday's meet will be either Chicago University or Princeton. The orange and black team will be handicapped by Coach Stagg's squad for the reason that the latter will be composed of 20 men to the Princeton's 15.

The athletes from Princeton are certainly a fine looking bunch, every one of them being tall and well built, and if appearances are any guide they will be experts in no difficulty in landing the meet. Coach Robinson was unable to bring the whole team which showed up so well in the recent intercollegiate meet, several of the members went abroad for the summer.

L. M. Atte, who is captain of the team, will run in the shot put and the hammer throw. De Witt will be a factor in the 400 yards.

The renowned J. B. De Witt will take part in the shot put and the hammer throw. De Witt is a power of about 40 feet.

W. H. Clark is listed for the high jump.

Harold H. Short, a St. Louis lad, who is the son of Rev. Short, will most likely throw the hammer and put the shot for the Princeton team.

The Princeton team is one of the strongest aggregations of college athletes sent to the meet, and there is every indication that the boys of Princeton will go to the Tiger men.

In the distance events, which include the mile and two-mile run, four men are entered.

They are Williams, Atte, Eisele and Chapin.

J. L. Eisele captured the two-mile run in the dual meet with Columbia University.

J. C. Chapin won the mile event at Chicago.

George Fox Jr., who won the broad jump at Chicago, will attempt to capture this event Saturday afternoon.

In the pole vault H. L. Moore, who tied for the high jump, is listed.

The only man in the hurdle event is J. N. Carter.

W. H. Clark is listed for the high jump.

COLLEGE ATHLETES TO MEET SATURDAY

RIVALRY BETWEEN EAST AND WEST WILL BE KEYNOTE OF OLYMPIC EVENTS AT THE STADIUM.

The Olympic College championship events, which will take place at the Stadium Saturday afternoon, will rank with the greatest collegiate athletic meets held in the United States. The events are open to colleges of the world, but it is not probable that any foreign university will be represented, and it is also known that Harvard and Yale will not send their athletes.
